

Available to tour to your museum
Contact David Glasser: davidg@benuri.org

Yalta 1945

Installation of 31 panels, 1986-87
By Vitaly Komar and Alexander Melamid
16 September 2016 to 29 January 2017

Previously exhibited:
documenta 8, 12 June – 20 September 1987
Brooklyn Museum of Art, New York, 16 March – 4 June 1990

Yalta 1945, 1986-87, Vitaly Komar (b. 1943 Moscow) and Alexander Melamid (b. 1945 Moscow)

Ben Uri is honoured to launch the world tour of this seminal monumental installation of Yalta 1945 from 1986-87 and not presented in public since its display at Brooklyn Museum of Art in New York in 1990.

Vitaly Komar and Alexander Melamid both graduated from the Stroganov Institute of Arts and Design in Moscow in 1967 when they first exhibited together at Moscow's Blue Bird Café. They are amongst the Soviet Union's most important non-conformist artists: founding 'Sots Art' which merged Socialist Realism, politicized Pop, and Conceptual art. In their multi-stylistic works of 'conceptual eclecticism', begun in 1972 and developed in Yalta 1945, they have become inventors of early post-modernism. In 1974 they were expelled from the youth section of the Soviet Artists Union. In the same year they participated in the unofficial exhibition 'The Bulldozer Show' in the suburbs of Moscow to great controversy and their double self-portraits as Lenin and Stalin were ruined by order of the State. In 1976 they had their first exhibition at the Ronald Feldman Fine Arts in New York. In 1977 they emigrated to Israel and created a work titled 'The Third Temple'. In 1978 they settled in New York and founded the Society of Buyers and Sellers of Human Souls working with Andy Warhol and others. In 1981-83, they created work reflecting the origins of Russian social realism from which this major sardonic and ground breaking installation emerged. Their career, together until 2003 and individually since, is synonymous with challenging establishment and traditional thinking with a cutting wit and piercing satire, in a post-Soviet and perestroika world. See komarandmelamid.org.

The Ben Uri collection has a fine example from their 'Symbols of the Big Bang' series from 2001-2003.

Read:

Vitaly Komar: The Avant-Garde, Sots-Art and The Bullbozer Exhibition of 1974

Vitaly Komar Interview with David Glasser: The Yalta Conference

Exhibition installed by Vitaly Komar, open 16 September 2016 – 29 January 2017

For images please contact Cristina Lago at cristinal@benuri.org

For curatorial issues and requests for interviews please contact David Glasser at davidg@benuri.org

Ben Uri Gallery & Museum
108a Boundary Road, off Abbey Road
London, NW8 0RH

 facebook.com/BenUriGallery

 @BenUriGallery | #Yalta16

 @BenUriGallery

Opening hours:

Monday 1 – 5.30

Tues – Friday 10 - 5.30

Sat – Sun 11– 5

Ben Uri Gallery & Museum | 020 7604 3991 | www.benuri.org Ben Uri, 108A Boundary Road, off Abbey Rd, London NW8 0RH
ART IDENTITY MIGRATION Registered Charity 280389 | Registered Museum 973