PRESS RELEASE

'As exciting as this is, imagine how exciting the collapse will be'

Dave Hickey

With an abundance of information and a multi-layered reality – by which we refer to as the world around us – our response is to create within our own terms, taking a reviewing, self-inquiring and self-asserting position.

Prefix is 'Post' is the Interim Show of 2nd year BA Fine Art students from the University for the Creative Arts. The show places the artists both in the physical present and the anticipated future. We propose a timeless human condition in a world oversaturated with images and digital data, a world that has multiple surfaces. Without the utopian or dystopian futures, what is left behind is a reality that is suspicious to images, in which we find ourselves drowning.

The show is a reflection of a diversity of practice, perspectives, political and cultural attitudes, with work ranging from painting, where painting becomes a sculptural medium, sculpture as image, the experience of the present under the form of performance, moving image, installation and photography.
