

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS' GALLERY OPENS
SOHO PHOTOGRAPHY QUARTER: A NEW OPEN AIR CULTURAL SPACE PRESENTING WORLD-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY FOR FREE

This summer, The Photographers' Gallery will launch Soho Photography Quarter, a permanent new outdoor cultural space, presenting the very best of contemporary photography, for free.

Offering dynamic new ways to discover the photographic medium, Soho Photography Quarter opens on 9 June 2022, following the refurbishment of Ramillies Place, which has transformed a previously overlooked alley into a beautifully designed, pedestrianised space and offers an inspiring gateway to Soho. The launch of the space extends The Photographers' Gallery's acclaimed exhibitions programme beyond the walls of the building and completes the development of its site in Soho as a centre of Photography.

A tranquil and accessible cultural space only seconds from Oxford Street, Soho Photography Quarter will present a rotating, open-air programme of site-specific and interactive artworks, which will change twice a year. The presentations will feature a significant art frieze in the main square, large-scale over street banners, plus moving image projections, soundscapes and other interactive works depending on the project.

Alongside the changing artworks, the Gallery will present a rich and engaging programme of activities and resources. From live events, artist talks and presentations, to short films, sound installations and specially commissioned AR projects, accessibility to the ideas and inspirations behind the projects will be a key part of SPQ's offer.

LAUNCH EXHIBITION: CHRISTIAN THOMPSON: BEING HUMAN HUMAN BEING
OPENS 9 JUNE 2022 - DECEMBER 2022

The opening presentation for Soho Photography Quarter, Being Human Human Being, comprises a large-scale, site-specific installation of works - including a large-scale art frieze, cross street banners, soundscapes and projections - by the acclaimed Indigenous Australian contemporary artist, Dr. Christian Thompson AO, presented in partnership with Photo Australia / PHOTO 2022 International Festival of Photography, Melbourne.

The Being Human Human Being installation is also one of the highlights of UK/Australia Season 2021-22, the largest ever cultural exchange between the two nations presented jointly by the Australian Government and the British Council.

Formally trained as a sculptor, Thompson's multidisciplinary practice engages mediums such as photography, video, sculpture, performance and sound. Thompson's works explore notions of identity, sexuality, gender, cultural hybridity, memory and history, often referring to the relationships between these concepts and the environment. Through performances and what he calls 'anti-portraits', he inhabits a range of personae achieved through incorporating handcrafted costumes and carefully orchestrated poses and backdrops.

The open-air exhibition will present selected works from the series' King Billy (2010), Polari (2014), Equinox (2018) and Flower Walls (2018-ongoing), all of which reflect on indigenous and diverse representation. Thompson fuses both specific references and universal symbols to create a distinct, often unconventional visual language.

King Billy (2010) draws on traditional portraiture, fashion photography, advertising, music promos and mugshots. The images show an anonymised figure, wearing a brightly coloured hoodie made from a textile customised with indigenous motifs and further adorned with symbols of power and authority (crown, pearls, medals etc). Positioned against a black backdrop, the subject commands a striking formidable presence, yet eschews any specific identity.

In Flower Walls (2018-Ongoing) the artist is immersed in a composition of dense and overlapping depictions of Australian native flora: an abundance of plants and flowers arranged in bursting colours. Amongst the foliage, parts of Thompson's face and hands are showing, seemingly appearing or submerged in the arrangement. It will feature the latest work in the series, also titled Being Human Human Being (2022), commissioned by Photo Australia and premiering internationally at the Soho Photography Quarter.

Indigenous flora and allegory also play an important role in further works presented as part of Being Human Human Being and reproduced in the space on large-scale 4 x 6m banners.

Primeval Sea (from the series Equinox 2018) shows Thompson's face encased by a floral wreath including Daisies and Proteas, a plant native to the prehistoric continent Gondwana. As in other works, which see him painting his skin or adorning himself with flowers and feathers, Thompson evokes a strong sense of ceremony or ritual that weaves together lived experience, cultural and art historical iconographies and ancient mythological narrative as a way of proposing or exploring fluid identity and cultural hybridity.

In Ellipse (from Polari, 2014) Thompson, wearing a platinum-white wig topped with a flower garland, poses like a Greek god against a sky-blue backdrop. Polari is a secret language used by vagabonds, traveling performers, sailors, criminals and revellers in the 1700s and 1800s. It was later adopted by the LGBTQ+ community in the UK as a protective code but also as a form of shared private language. Thompson's celebration of evolving, non-binary identities through costume and performance can be seen as an echo of the use of Polari language as a form of disguise for the many subcultures and communities that used/use it.

The presentation also includes audio visual work that investigates the loss of Indigenous languages. In a hauntingly beautiful new soundscape Phantom, (2022) Thompson sings in his father's native language, Bidjara, now classified as extinct, against a melodic backdrop of instrument, breath and speech. The significance of vernacular is also explored in the video work, Dead tongue (2015), where Thompson also interrogates the implications of England's empirical quest on the former colonies of the British Empire. In a second video projection, Amsterdam RMX (2020), Thompson presents a more direct and subjective experience of what the Bidjara language feels and sounds like. Here Thompson stands in front of a black backdrop cloaked in a hooded coat, singing to us with specs of snow rapidly falling in front of him.

Artist Christian Thompson says: "I am delighted that my work will launch the Soho Photography Quarter. The first Indigenous Australian artist to be accepted into Oxford University in its 900-year history, I have lived and worked across Australia and London for over a decade. By inserting my own imagery and sound (singing in my traditional Bidjara language) into these spaces, I seek to highlight both the legacies of colonialism and the complexity of human identities, while simultaneously alluding to the multifaceted and layered histories of the precinct."

Brett Rogers, Director, The Photographers' Gallery, says: "Soho Photography Quarter (SPQ) represents the realisation of a long-awaited vision to transform the public area outside The Photographers' Gallery into a welcoming, prominent cultural and social destination for people to encounter extraordinary images for free. Photography is one of our foremost and most accessible cultural forms, so being able to showcase the very best of what's being created in this field for everyone to enjoy feels like a really valuable addition to the cultural offer in the West End. SPQ will present a wide range of work from world-class photographers, extending the Gallery's passion and commitment to the medium beyond the Gallery walls and engaging new audiences, who might not otherwise experience it. We will also offer free events, talks and other activities in the space to enhance visitor experience and bring the works to life."

Michael Napthali, UK/Australia Season Director, says: "The UK/Australia Season 2021-22 theme of 'Who Are We Now?' reflects on our history, explores our current relationship, and imagines our future together. We are thrilled the acclaimed Indigenous Australian contemporary artist, Dr. Christian Thompson AO's 'Being Human Human Being' installation will be the opening presentation for Soho Photography Quarter, bringing his striking and moving work to thousands of people in the UK this year. Christian's work is a true articulation of our Season theme, and we encourage you to see this extraordinary installation and make your own reflection on 'Who Are We Now?'."

Christian Thompson is represented by Sarah Scout Presents, Melbourne.

About The Photographers' Gallery:

The Photographers' Gallery opened in 1971 in Covent Garden, London, as the UK's first independent and publicly funded gallery devoted to photography. It was the first UK gallery to exhibit many key names in international photography, including Juergen Teller, Robert Capa, Sebastiano Salgado and Andreas Gursky. The Gallery has also been instrumental in establishing contemporary British photographers, including Martin Parr and Corinne Day. In 2009 the Gallery relocated to a new multi-storey building in Ramillies Street, Soho and opened its doors to the public in 2012 after an ambitious redevelopment plan which provided the Gallery with three floors of state-of-the-art exhibition space as well as an education/events studio, a gallery for commercial sales, bookshop and cafe. The success of The Photographers' Gallery over the past four decades has helped to secure the medium's position as a vital and highly regarded art form, introducing new audiences to photography and championing its place at the heart of visual culture.
